The National Charity saving Buildings at Risk for everyone

Scottish Historic Buildings Trust is entirely self-financing and relies on the generosity of others to save vulnerable historic buildings for you and for future generations. The number of buildings we save is limited by the funds available to us. Through your support, we can ensure the future of Scotland's important buildings which are at risk.

Current Appeals and Campaigns - All donations are welcome

Riddle's Court, Edinburgh - The Patrick Geddes Centre

SHBT need to raise £5 million to transform this highly significant 16th Century Old Town building into a National Learning and Conservation Centre and a community hub in the heart of the World Heritage Site.

Ham Giral, Caithness - North Highlands Hub for Culture and Performing Arts

This significant former grain store in the remote North East of Scotland will become an important national outpost for performing arts organisations and a hub for the local community. SHBT need to raise £4 million to repair, conserve and transform this building.

Greenlaw Town Hall - Community hall

SHBT have recently opened Greenlaw Town Hall for business following an intense 3 year campaign. The main hall still cannot be used for formal events however, because of a funding shortfall for toilets and kitchen provision. We are now seeking to raise £70,000 to enable this final part of the building work to be completed.

Further details of all our projects and appeals can be found on our website www.shbt.org.uk
