Background Information

Greenlaw Town Hall is a category A listed former town hall, completed in 1831 and was designed by architect John Cunningham. The building has been used for a variety of purposes over the years prior to its restoration by Scottish Historic Buildings Trust. The building was officially opened by HRH Duke of Rothesay in May 2011.

The £1.9 million project restored the building, converted the pavilions into office accommodation and brought the multi-purpose hall back into use. Combining a unique historic building with the modern benefits of new heating, lighting, services, IT infrastructure and high specification fire and security detection.

Whether you are interested in a fully self contained pavilion, an individual office or the community hall, please contact our Property Manager to discuss your requirements.
